CEMETERY IS STIRRING UP SOUTH SIDE

Association Puts Barbed
Wire Fence Around
Its Land

PLANT MANY TREES

City Manager Says Cemetery Association Can't Come in City

The residents of South Glendale are aflutter with indignation over what they believe is the first step in the extension of Forest Lawn cemetery into Glendale. During the past few days the cemetery association has erected a wire fence along its property line and close to the sidewalk on Glendale avenue, and it extends north from the entrance to the cemetery up to the south line of what is generally known as the Schofield place, a distance of 300 or 400 feet. From this point this fence is continued easterly along the association's north property line, across the ravine or wash and over the hill. The property that has been enclosed is known as the "old Stone place," consisting of quite a few acres.

In addition to this the association has planted a row of small cypress trees along this fence on the Glendale avenue front and has planted various varieties of trees and shrubbery at other points. It is apparent that the immediate purpose of the cemetery association is to convert the property into a park, but the South Glendale residents who look a little farther ahead believe they see the park converted into a burial ground.

"Then when I reached Minneapolis," Greene wired, "the United States veterans' bureau, for which I worked, informed me that my services were no longer required."

SMALLPOX SAID TO BE EPIDEMIC

According to Dr. J. E. Eckles, city health officer, an epidemic of smallpox has appeared in the southern part of the state, and is gradually traveling toward Glendale.

Dr. Eckles advises people who have not been vaccinated within the past five years to have it done at once. A communication from the state board of health advised the local department of the rapid spread of the epidemic and urged the health officer to take steps to encourage vaccination.

Dr. Eckles is arranging to have vaccine brought to this city and when it arrives it will be possible to vaccinate everyone in Glendale who desires it.

What Is Our Greatest Need? This Question Is Asked Seriously

The elimination of greed! The refinement of the spirit. What do we need most in the world?

There are three thoughts taken at random from James W. Foley's "Listening Post," in this paper tonight. And his answer to the question is "Intelligence richly colored and warmed with humanity." You will find that Mr. Foley's column is worth reading and reading carefully.

Henry James in his comments on the news of the day on the editorial page mentions the introduction of a bill in the Kentucky legislature forbidding the teaching of evolution which Mr. James says is as certain as life. "Ignorance scoffs at evolution," says Mr. James, "and thus betrays its own character."

Dr. Frank Crane has something to say about moral education and John Pilgrim, too, touches on something akin to this.

We want all the readers of this newspaper to come to learn of the values to be found on the editorial page. We want our large circle of readers to thoroughly enjoy the best in editorials, the best in features and the best in poetry and philosophy that we can place before them. We believe in our editorial page and we want you to believe in it too.

MODERN HOME FOR AGED PREACHERS

Now Being Erected on South Glendale Avenue
by Alliance

A modern rest home for aged preachers of the Christian Alliance denomination is in the course of building on South Glendale avenue. Five acres has been purchased on the east side of this thoroughfare in the region of Eulalia street by Mrs. E. P. Suppes of Los Angeles, who has already started improvement work on the property.

One street has been cut through the property and another to parallel it will be cut within a short time. Curbs and sidewalks are being installed along the street that has already been cut and soon an allied and rock roadway will be installed.

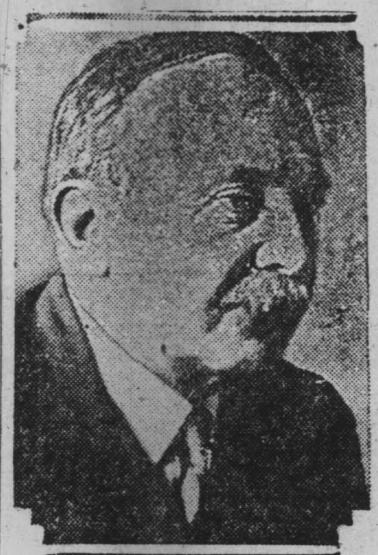

On this property Mrs. Suppes will construct twenty-four-room bungalows, these to be modern in every way. The first two of these have already been started, and the remainder will be erected two at a time.

There will also be a large home built for homeless children. This will cost about $8000 and will be modern in every way. Mrs. Suppes will occupy a home which she will construct on Glendale avenue at the corner of her property. This residence will cost something like $7500. It will contain six rooms and will be modern in every way.

The improvements that are being put in and those contemplated, along with the purchase price of the property, represent an investment of about $100,000.

Part of the property purchased by Mrs. Suppes runs up on the side of the hill east of Glendale avenue. Several of the homes will be located on this hillside, which will be improved with trees, shrubbery, etc. C. M. Retts of 114 West Park avenue has charge of the installation of this improvement work.

KITTY GORDON HAS THRILL NO. TWO

Talks $35 Worth to Her
Fiancee in New York
Wednesday

DES MOINES, Ia., Jan. 26.—Kitty Gordon, stage star, turned her beautiful back to those "horrid rumors" and today reaffirmed her engagement to Ralph Ranlet, New York broker.

The beautiful Kitty was a bit perturbed over New York reports last night that her Wall street fiancé had denied their engagement following Kitty's announcement here yesterday.

Kitty declared today she was sure that Ranlet, after an exchange of telegrams last night and a long talk with her on the telephone, would be glad to join with her in making public their "perfectly lovely engagement."

"Ralph spent $35 to talk to me long distance last night, and I guess he got his money's worth," Kitty declared. "He scolded me for giving out our engagement without notifying him, but I wanted to give him a thrill."

"When he wrote me the other day that it annoyed him to hear people say I was married to Jack Wilson, my former stage partner, and asked me to publicly deny it, I decided to go him one better—and announce our engagement."

"Perhaps I should have waited until I got my hands on that divorce decree," added Kitty, who filed suit in England a year ago for separation from her present husband, the Hon. Henry Beresford. "But I expect my divorce very soon—and when I get it, I am going to marry Ralph Ranlet."

Motor Bus Lines Salvation Of Glendale Transportation

By JOHN H. GERRIE
Prosperity Editor Glendale Daily Press

Motor busses are now looked to as the salvation of Glendale. As the controversy over Pacific Electric passenger rates proceeds without getting anywhere, Glendale daily are becoming more convinced that the only way out for them is in the establishment of motor bus lines.

Several plans for such lines are now under consideration. They may be privately owned or municipally controlled. They may run into the heart of Los Angeles or they may connect with the yellow car line near at hand. An announcement of public interest may be forthcoming any day.

Glendaleans are desirous of being perfectly fair in the matter. They concede the justice of the Railroad commission in the plan to award rates to the big interurban system based upon mileage. But they claim that in the case of Glendale that basis has not been strictly followed. They also take issue with the P. E. announcement that rates now in effect are not discriminatory.

They want to know why Glendale residents are charged a one-way rate of 23 cents into Los Angeles while Hollywood people pay only 10 cents. The distances between the business districts of the two communities and the business district of Los Angeles, they claim, are approximately the same.

They also are inclined to the opinion that it is discriminatory to force a branch line that is an established money maker to make up the deficiency for branches that are losers. The Glendale line is reputed to be the best paying branch of the P. E. system, yet the new Glendale rate, figured in mileage, they claim, is highest on the system.

Some commuters of an observing trend have expressed the opinion that it is putting a premium upon incompetency and inefficiency to waste more public money upon a rail system that is unable to meet the rate competition of motor stages. They fail to see the sense in subsidizing an almost obsolete system if motor transportation has come to stay. They profess to see an admission on the part of the Railroad Commission that it has come to stay as well as of its economy and efficiency in the recent order for motor bus feeders to the electric line in Glendale.

Why prolong the agony for the unsuccessful subsidiary of the wealthy Southern Pacific company? ask these commuters. Why not acknowledge failure, tear up the tracks and put in motor busses with reasonable fares? If we're coming to motor busses give them to us now and prevent the further waste of money. That's what they say.

Of motor bus plans under consideration locally, one is for lines through the residence and business sections of this city, thence along Glendale avenue, connecting with the yellow car line in Verdugo road. The fare to the Los Angeles cars would be 5 cents, giving a total fare of 10 cents from any part of Glendale to any part of Los Angeles by using yellow car transfers.

Another plan would give a through line from Broadway, Glendale, to Broadway, Los Angeles, for a 10-cent fare, with a commutation rate of about 7 cents each way. It is believed, however, that an even better through rate may be made.

While some of these plans have been presented unofficially by individuals, pending the possible formation of operating companies, there seems to be a growing sentiment that a municipally owned stage line would be a good business proposition for the city and at the same time a guarantee that rates and schedules would be maintained on bases satisfactory to the majority of citizens. Three main routes for stage lines through this city are usually suggested, via Glendale avenue, Brand boulevard and San Fernando road, thence into Los Angeles via Glendale boulevard or along the Verdugo road for yellow car connection. A cross town line along Broadway also is proposed with transfers to the north and south cars.

DEBATE TEAM WILL MEET LONG BEACH TEAM FRIDAY

Isabel Tousey and Dale
Wood to Hold G. U.
H. S. Honors

Friday night at 8 o'clock the debating team of Glendale, Union High school will meet the Long Beach debaters at the high school in Long Beach.

The question to be debated is, "Resolved, that extra territoriality in China should be abolished."

For nearly three months, the debaters have been working up affirmative debate on this subject and are well prepared. Mr. Perkins, debating coach for G. U. H. S. has worked with the team.

Miss Gardner, dramatic teacher and former debating coach at the high school has also rendered her services in helping the debaters in their delivery.

The first affirmative speaker will be Miss Isabel R. Tousey, '23 of Glendale, who has never been in a league debate before but has shown her ability in this line and is a splendid debater. Miss Tousey has worked up arguments and a delivery that will be hard to compete with.

Dale T. Wood, '22, second affirmative speaker will be remembered as class orator for the Juniors last year. He was also one of those who participated in the last winning debate with Hollywood. He makes a habit of winning decisions and is a fine debater. He has some arguments that are sure to worry Long Beach.

Mr. Perkins, the coach, could not have picked a better team and Glendale may have confidence in her debaters and feel sure that they will add one more honor to the already enormous list claimed by the local high school.

The debate promises to be very lively since both teams are evenly matched. Long Beach has the same score in the league as Glendale, 137. Long Beach high school has a reputation of putting up good debates and of having good debaters.

CLERGYMEN 'SIT' ON SCHOOL DANCE

Portland School Board
Takes No Action on Brief Filed

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 25.—Portland's clergymen have filed a brief with the school board against dancing in the public schools. They set forth in the legal form, the case of the Church against Terpsichore, charging that these are the things which make dancing improper in the public schools.

1—Dancing is contributory to immorality and is a sex stimulus when indulged in by the very young, as in the cases of grammar school dances particularly.

2—The school dance projects the child who would escape this dangerous experiment into the midst of it years before it would come normally.

3—The public school should not be so conducted as to break down the morale that Christian parents seek to maintain in their home life.

4—Seven-eighths of the high schools and grammar schools are left without adequate dance supervision, excepting a voluntary group of patronesses, many of whom do not attend.

The "corset controversy" was shrouded by the clergymen. It grew out of charges that at certain dances, dates not given, girls checked their stays because young men refused to attend maidens.

"In the same navy with Old Ironsides," as it was said the young men phrased it. Members of the school board declared that the clergymen had failed to prove their case.

ORGANIZING A SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

Talented Violinist, John Marquardt Is to Be Leader

IN HIGH AUDITORIUM

Secures Permit to Use Assembly Room for Purpose

It seems settled that Glendale is to have a symphony orchestra organized by John Marquardt, the distinguished violinist who returned to Glendale about a year ago after he convinced himself that Glendale is the only place.

He has secured a permit to use the auditorium of the high school once a week and his organization will soon be effected. Glendale has much promising material and it seems an excellent place for such an organization to be effected.

Mr. Marquardt studied at the Royal Academy in Berlin under the famous French violinist, Emil Sauer, and appeared with great success as a soloist in Germany, England and France.

Responding to a call from Boston to lead the Mendelssohn Quintette on a tour through the United States, he achieved further success and on his return joined the Boston Symphony Orchestra as a soloist. He has also belonged to the Chicago and the Philadelphia orchestras.

As an exponent of the German, French and modern schools he has won the respectful recognition of the musical fraternity. He is now to be found at 617 North Brand boulevard and after February 1 will have his headquarters at Brand and Burchett streets.

Glendaleans who want to know how talented the children of our grammar schools are should take in this clever show if they have not already witnessed it. The children and teachers who prepared it deserve a big audience. Our school budget should be large enough to provide athletic equipment to last through the year and not make it necessary for the boys and girls to earn the money to buy the balls they need for the course in physical training which the state curriculum demands.

The first step will be the cleaning up of the party deficit of about $200,000 resulting from the last campaign. Cordell Hull, chairman of the Democratic national committee, was sending out appeals to Democrats today to rush contributions for the party coffers. The Cox speech also is the signal for a bitter attack on the Harding administration in all Democratic quarters.

Truths in Epigram

Pride is at the bottom of all great mistakes.—Ruskin (1819-1900).

Who speaks the truth stabs falsehood to the heart.—Lowell (1819-1891).

The greatest of faults, I should say, is to be conscious of none.—Carlyle (1795-1881).

FRANCE AND RUSSIA

France shows signs of skepticism as to reconstruction of Russia. For this it has abundant reason. As no stream may rise above its source, no system devised and controlled by a Lenin may hope to be regarded as respectable. It is nothing to inspire confidence.

Bolshevism has openly scoffed at the sanctity of pledges. It has declared war on capital in the absence of which it cannot have industrial life. It has imprisoned or starved its men of brains, and exalted the brutal and ignorant. It had permitted its lands to be barren, its transportation to decay, its factories to lapse into disuse and ruin. Millions of its people die of starvation, and millions more would do so except for the charity of the world; the world that bolshevism affects to despise, and the downfall of which it plots.

If Russia is to be rehabilitated it must be capable of transacting business. It must have something to sell, and it must have the means with which to buy. It owes billions, payment of which it has reneged. Now, as it seems in mood to promise to pay, the fact intrudes that a soviet promise means nothing; that there is no soviet honor.

There does not appear any short road for Russia back to normal. Without internal reformation, it could not be rebuilt from the outside, and there seems to be no intent to rebuild it from within. It adopted the policy of destruction, and it has almost succeeded in destroying itself. It has utterly destroyed any confidence that once might have been felt in its good faith. It is deep in a pit of its own digging. What force is to drag it forth and re-fill the pit?

CONDITION OF THE CITRUS CROP

There is no utility in asserting that the recent frosts did not injure the citrus crop. In all probability such injury was inflicted. The cold was severe and sudden, and at its lowest temperature did not supply conditions favorable to oranges and lemons. On the other hand, there seem to have been exaggerated reports of damage. The exact truth about it will be known in due time.

Meanwhile the citrus growers are taking prompt steps to prevent the shipment of any frozen fruit. This is a form of protection that they could not afford to ignore. It is not pleasing to have a visitation of frost, but such things do occur. Florida and Georgia have them at inopportune times, and southern California is not wholly exempt, although more nearly immune than the other regions mentioned.

The mere fact of frost could do only occasional and transitory harm, but to ship fruit that had been frosted would be a blow at the reputation of the community, certain to be serious in its effects. Very promptly the growers have risen to the situation.

THE CLOSE CALL

Recently a speeding automobile cleared the track ahead of a speeding locomotive, it lost a spare tire. This had been on the back of the automobile, as is the custom, and the locomotive sheared it off. The driver went on his way, possibly not conscious of his loss, but thinking that he had been smart.

The ghastly array of accidents is due largely to the desire to experience the thrill of escaping a close call. Autoists seem prone to flirt with death. When immediate tragedy results, that ends the matter. If they get away, they try it again.

To comment upon the catastrophes of the highway seems almost useless. Protests, police and prayers, fines, jail and maiming, avail nothing. Intelligence and judgment cannot be legislated or knocked into an empty head. No mechanism can be made fool-proof.

Not all accidents are the fault of drivers. Sunday at a crowded corner two women were observed angling across the street exactly as though they were the only persons there. An automobile, turning the corner at moderate speed, the driver assuming evidently that the women had sense, would have missed them had this not been a flattering estimate of their mental equipment. When the driver saw that they did not know enough to get out of the way, he saved them only by a sudden swerve that made him crash into another machine. As both machines were moving slowly, no great harm was done, except to the tempers of the women who were wholly at fault.

So long as people, on foot or at the wheel, continue to take chances, they will have to take the consequences, too.

IMPOSING ON CHARITY

Although charity suffers long and is kind, it occasionally finds that it has reached the limit, declines to suffer more, and ceases to be kind.

In Los Angeles a woman has received aid from the county to the amount of $1675 paid in regular installments. She represented herself as a widow, the mother of ten children, and was able to put up more of an ordinary number of "poor mouths." She forgot to add to the specifications the fact that she kept a man around the house in the capacity of common-law husband, and that she was busily engaged in buying a flat building. Some prowling investigator ascertained these things, and reporting them, cut her off from her source of supplies. Now the county will sue for the return of $1675. The county's experience has been worth something, but probably not $1675.

In every community are people who need and deserve help. There also are professional mendicants who merit a season on the rock pile. The task of ascertaining applicants into the classes their status warrants is not simple. It has called into service organizations that serve not merely as distributors of charity, but detectors of fraud.

A MYSTERY OF PEARLS

A necklace containing 389 pearls was sold by a New York dealer to an automobile manufacturer of Detroit for $825,000. There was some discussion of the matter because of a rumor that the stones had not made legal entry into this country. This part of the affair has been settled. The entry was legal. As one paper announces: "The mystery of the pearls has now been cleared up." However, there is a mystery that remains as dark as ever.

Why should anybody pay nearly a million dollars for a gaudy string to be worn about the neck? Such a possession could be nothing but a burden. It would be bound to excite the cupidty of thieves. People who had the honor to behold it either would be foolishly jealous of the wearer, or deem the wearing an offense against good taste.

To have a fortune dangling from the neck is against sound public policy. It tends to confuse the mind. It sets up a feeling of discontent, and accentuates a belief, already too apparent, that there is injustice in social conditions. It is idle to inform working men that they are being paid as much as the profits of the business will warrant, when out of the profits of the business, nearly a million, as in this instance, is lavished in wanton and entirely selfish luxury.

Indubitably, an individual has a legal right to pay even $825,000 for a necklace if he has the money. Such an act, however, would be thought an extravagance, certain to be used effectively as a text by every agitator railing against the industrial system. The system is not perfect, to be sure, but it is the best that human intelligence has contrived, and there is scant wisdom in putting weapons into the hands of its enemies.

Eastern financial circles are said to fear that they won't get a square deal from the predominant western influence in the senate. Probably this is the suggestion of a guilty conscience. There does not come to mind anything else on which it might be based.

The horrid record of automobile accidents does not change in volume or character. In Los Angeles and immediate vicinity, including January 22, there had been 30 fatalities for the month, 123 persons injured, and total accidents numbered 1864. Of the last doubtless there were many others not reported. The worst of it is that nobody seems to know the remedy.

MORAL EDUCATION

By DR. FRANK CRANE

A few days before the meeting of the League of Nations at Geneva, another conference, private, not much advertised, and quite unnoticed, took place in the same city.

It was attended by a score or so of men and women interested in a problem that is more fundamental than the League or President Harding's disarmament scheme, namely, the moral education of the world's youth.

At bottom every question of human conduct is a moral one. In every human being is an instinct indicating right and wrong. It is called Conscience. Nobody has ever satisfactorily explained just what it is, for it is a function of that mystery of mysteries, the Personality.

When we understand what the human spirit, then we shall understand what Conscience is, which will be never.

But because we cannot comprehend it is no proof that we do not need to use it every hour of our lives, and to develop it so as to make it more useful.

We do not understand what Electricity is, for that matter, but we could hardly get along without it.

This instinct can unquestionably be strengthened and improved by education, that is, by intelligent guidance and by training.

Just as is the case with one's arm or ear or brain, so with the Conscience, the more it is exercised and the less it is abused, the stronger and more skillful it becomes.

Conscience training has been left too much to the church. It needs the most intelligent and scientific application, and religious organizations, while excellent for sincerity and noble aim, are too prone to slight facts and overvalue enthusiasms.

The place for Conscience training are the home and the public school, as well as the church. From the average home the best the child can expect is helpful example and environment, "which is most important."

But from the school he should receive clear instruction and dependable knowledge. It is the business of educators to supply these.

The child should be carefully drilled in what is right, and scrupulously trained to despise and loathe what is wrong.

He should be drilled in self-mastery, and shown the shamefulness of will-weakness and self-pity. This need not infringe upon the sphere of church teaching, but rather should prepare for it and co-operate with it. But the fundamentals of decency and fair dealing, of honor and honesty, are the same in every sect.

The greatest common divisor of all religions is Conscience, and the public school ought to pay more attention to it.

For, after all, what business needs is Conscience. The soundness of all commerce rests upon it.

Conscience is the underlying foundation of all law. People do not learn not to steal and lie by studying arithmetic and geography, but by learning the rules of right and wrong and by practicing them.

It is Conscience that is the essential in all good work, from bricklaying and bridge building to newspaper editing and book writing. A keener sense of right and wrong is the greatest desideratum in all these fields.

It is Conscience that is needed in politics. The great political mistakes are due to crookedness. An honest statesman will go farther than a clever one.

In short, too feeble a Conscience is what's the matter with the world.

Every store needs Honest clerks more than clever ones.

Just plain everyday Goodness is what is needed everywhere.

That universal instinct was planted in man by his Creator, to enable him to get along; and only by developing and conserving it, studying and strengthening it, will this earth gradually be made "a decenter place to live in."

THE LISTENING POST

What is knowledge?
Knowledge is an understanding of the truth.
And what is truth?
Truth is the absolute of understanding beyond which there is no progress.

Thus two times two are four.
That is the truth.
And it is the absolute.
Because all the further understanding we may gain will never alter the fact that two times two are four.

Of course, there are other truths to be learned with reference to two and two.
But not with reference to two times two.
You note the difference.
Mathematics are constant and exact.
Or is constant and exact.
For we don't know whether mathematics is or mathematics are.
So we put it both ways.

What is the purpose of knowledge?
It is to further the happiness, growth, progress and comfort of the human race.
Has it any other purpose?
Not except as it may tickle the fancy of the purely intellectual.

Who are the purely intellectual?
Those who live in the domain of intellect alone.
What is the nature of that region?
It is clear, cold and sparkling like Arctic ice.

Why?
Because it is not tinged enough with humanity.
And what is humanity?
Humanity is the consciousness of being a human being.
And is a human being constant and exact?
No, the human being is inconstant and variable.
Why?
Because of the humanity in him.

What facts of human knowledge are most valuable?
Those that have most to do with the happiness, growth, progress and comfort of human beings.
Will you give an example?
Yes. It is more important to know how to eliminate the typhoid germ than it is to speak with Mars.

Why?
Because the typhoid germ kills people and it is unimportant to dead people whether they speak with anybody or not.
Will you give another example?
Yes. It is more important that we live to be happy than that we die to be happy.

And what are knowledge and education and religion for?
That people may live and be happy.
Why?
Because unhappiness is a great tragedy when long continued.
And is unhappiness necessary?
No. It arises from a defect in our education.

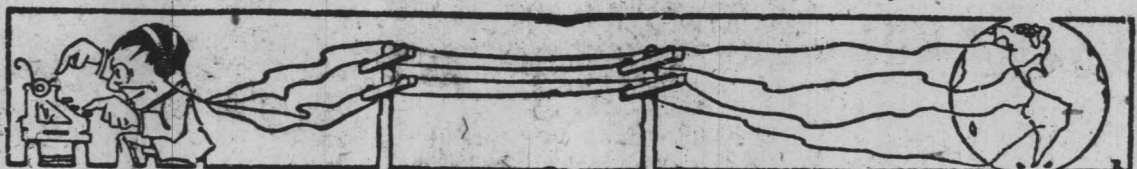

What is the reason for undernourishment and hunger?
A defect in distribution.
Can it be corrected?
Certainly.
How?
By remedying the defect in education that causes it.
And what is that remedy?
The elimination of greed.

Can that be done?
Not wholly. But it can be approximated.
How?
By spiritual education.
And what is that?
The refinement of the spirit.

And what is greed?
Unrestrained desire.
In what creatures does it predominate?
Hyenas, and animals like that.
And are there people with the characteristics of hyenas?
Many of them.

What do we need most in the world?
Intelligence richly colored and warmed with humanity.
Are we progressing toward that?
We are.
And are YOU progressing?
I don't know. It is for you to say.

JAMES W. FOLEY.

SONGS OF THE POETS

On His Having Arrived to the Age of Twenty-Three.—By John Milton (1608-1674)

How soon hath Time, the subtle thief of youth,
Stolen on his wing my three-and-twentieth year!
My hasting days fly on with full career,
But my late spring no bud or blossom shew'th.
Perhaps my semblance might deceive the truth
That I to manhood am arrived so near;
And inward ripeness doth much less appear,

Than some more timely-happy spirits endu'th.
Yet, be it less or more, be soon or slow,
It shall be still in strictest measure even
To that same lot, however mean or high,
Toward which Time leads me, and the will of Heaven;
All is, if I have grace to use it so,
As ever in my great Taskmaster's eye.

OBSERVED AT A GLANCE

By HENRY JAMES

The United States never will be represented at the Genoa conference by Borah or La Follette, that's certain. They don't even represent it in the senate.

The young man who for a time refused a million dollar legacy, has broken into print again. He is a nut in the present role, too.

The claim is made that the normal life of man is 100 years. Nothing in it but another instance of the wish being father to the thought.

Many artists of the operatic stage really seem to have the disposition that ought to go with pugilism.

Russians reds also have some reparation claims to present. They are an amusing lot.

No bill to extinguish the identity of the marines ever will be popular in this country.

There is no trace of the mother-in-law joke in the case of the Los Angeles woman who shot her son-in-law.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

VOTERS AND THE "BLOCS"

[Detroit Free Press]

Representative Ansorge's bill to prohibit the formation of blocs in congress and punish the members of any such combinations by fine is not likely to reach the stage of serious discussion in either house. The strongest advocate of party regularity must recognize that party fidelity is a matter of personal choice and opinion, and that those who refuse to stand by their parties, or create factions in them, are answerable not to congress or to any law but to the voters who elected them. If the voters make up their minds that they wish to be governed by parties representing interests, sections and classes they will have it that way, and with the foreign word bloc there will come other words current in foreign politics like agrarian, proletarian, clerical and anti-clerical, which stand for ideas that now lurk on the fringes of national politics. The best assurance that the farmers' bloc is a temporary thing which need not be dealt with by law is the fact that the American people do not like the ideas for which those words stand.

OPEN DIPLOMACY'S VICTORY

[New York Tribune]

The Washington conference has set new standards in "open diplomacy." There has never been before an international congress of its class so willing to let the light of day in its proceedings. The recent communications on the actual limitation debates in committee have given a practically complete summary of the proceedings and arguments. Nothing of this sort was ever attempted under the older regime.

President Wilson went to Paris in 1918 with a demand for "open covenants openly arrived at." Yet, as Andre Tardieu has disclosed, Mr. Wilson in the early days of the peace conference was persuaded to cast his vote for non-publicity, and even insisted that a censorship should be maintained on news cabled to the United States. Our people were kept in the dark as to what was going on at the secret sessions in Paris, and the European public was equally misled as to the sort of peace settlement the American people desired. Imagine what would have been the clarifying effect at Paris of column-long transcripts of discussion such as have been filling the newspapers for days past!

Open diplomacy cleared the way for the limitation put on naval capital ship strength, for it rallied world sentiment behind the Hughes project from the very start. It has brought China's wrongs to the forefront and compelled a candid consideration of them.

The Washington conference risked an experiment in genuine publicity. In view of the admirable results already achieved through this departure it is safe to assume that open diplomacy has come to stay.

JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES

By DELLA STEWART

You and I have all the time that there is. We can use it or be used by it. It's up to us. It's the one thing that is wholly ours, whatever our place in life may be. We can't lose it or lend it or give it away—we must use it or be used by it.

We can mortgage it, and many of us do. Poor health is a mortgage on a person's time. So is idleness. So is thoughtlessness. And the interest demanded is heavy, limiting the work that we might accomplish, the pleasure that might come to us.

It's much more satisfying to use time than to be used by it. We can plan our days and accomplish much, or we can be haphazard in our doing and lose much. Budgeting time is a variety of thrift that some of the most economical of us have never tried. But it's a good thing to do.

Try it some day when the hours seem more than crowded. So many efforts for the day, yes. So many must-be's, so many want-to's. How can we do them all? Try budgeting the hours. So many minutes for so many efforts. So much work done by such an hour, with a want-to squeezed in at the end for good measure.

By getting time gone to be a brave little game. One best plays it solitary. One learns to do without false motions. One learns to plan closely, to shorten methods, to carry more than one line of activity through the same hours, giving to each only the necessary effort.

Budgeting time. Try it some day. See if the result is not pleasing.

Yet, as Andre Tardieu has disclosed, Mr. Wilson in the early days of the peace conference was persuaded to cast his vote for non-publicity, and even insisted that a censorship should be maintained on news cabled to the United States. Our people were kept in the dark as to what was going on at the secret sessions in Paris, and the European public was equally misled as to the sort of peace settlement the American people desired. Imagine what would have been the clarifying effect at Paris of column-long transcripts of discussion such as have been filling the newspapers for days past!

Open diplomacy cleared the way for the limitation put on naval capital ship strength, for it rallied world sentiment behind the Hughes project from the very start. It has brought China's wrongs to the forefront and compelled a candid consideration of them.

The Washington conference risked an experiment in genuine publicity. In view of the admirable results already achieved through this departure it is safe to assume that open diplomacy has come to stay.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

A member of the Kentucky legislature, whose name the dispatches shield from immortal fame, has introduced a bill forbidding the teaching of evolution.

HENRY JAMES

When his cognomen shall have peered through the fog of obscurity, well may it be inscribed along with that of Voliva, who proclaims the flatness of the earth, and that of the colored minister, the earnest Brother Jasper, who preached "de sun do move." Hadn't he seen it move?

Evolution is one of the certainties of life. It still is in progress, and always must be, if humanity is to reach the plane towards which its nobler instincts strive.

The story of evolution is written in God's everlasting hills. It is told in the rocks. In more compact form it appears in the unfolding of the seed, the opening of the bud, and the perfection of the fruit.

Ignorance scoffs at evolution, and thus betrays its own character. Intelligence seeks to draw knowledge from the history of the process; looking forward towards the crowning of the great endeavor, and backward for traces of its beginnings.

The law of evolution laid bare to human judgment, is an unassailable argument that there is an intelligence so stupendous that the attempt to fathom it, even faintly to comprehend it, is presumptuous and futile. But the glimpse that mankind may obtain is sound basis for belief in the Almighty plan; for belief that it has a purpose; that throughout the universe of suns and stars and measureless spaces, and for eternity, all is well.

A girl "out on location," as they say in the movies, had the mischance to be bucked from the back of a ramping elephant. It is seldom indeed, that even so intelligent a beast as the elephant lends itself so perfectly to the purpose of a press agent. If the camera man was as wise as the elephant, he "shot" the lady as she flew.

Somebody, said to be a great naturalist, is thus quoted: "The difference between a low type of African savage and a highly developed white man, is greater than the difference between that savage and a blade of grass."

The principal thing to be learned from this is that it is possible to be rated as a great naturalist, and yet say an extremely foolish thing.

They are trying to tinker the minimum wage law that says $16 is necessary to a working woman. This sum is necessary, but it is only a portion of the total necessary.

Thoughtful gentlemen who do not want womankind led into habits of wastefulness desire the minimum to be brought down to $12. Others, thoughtful in a different way, want the minimum boosted to $19. Whatever happens, the statesmen who backs the opinion of the first group of gentlemen will be arranging for a political funeral at which he will be the center of interest.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia has made an attack on modern systems of education. He seems to pine for the good old times, when students devoted more hours of study to Greek and Latin. Perhaps the system could be bettered, but pining for the good old times is a sure symptom of age.

Germany had a dream that Poincaré would have the velvet glove with no iron hand inside. This seems to have been dissipated. Poincaré appears to agree with the majority of the French, that Germany as the perpetrator of a great wrong, should be made to give some sort of recompense, and feel some penalty. Such is not the German idea at all.

Newspaper men, many of whom had known Frank C. Roberts for many years, regret sincerely to have to record the death of their fellow worker.

The chap, Garland, who declined to accept a legacy of a million, stating that not having earned it, he had no right to it, was commonly set down as a plain chump. When tardily he concluded to take the money, the thought arose that he had had a stroke of intelligence.

It is stated now that he became willing to take it because he had found a soul mate. He wanted to bring this s.m. into his home, but his wife objected. So he will use the money to provide for the pair, the legal one of the pair getting hers in the form of alimony. Garland will be rightly served when the s.m. files the coop with her portion.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

Maybe I am wrong in this. This suggestion is advanced with diffidence and in full confidence that it will be repelled. But isn't it barely possible that as a nation we are getting a trifle too easygoing? Are we not inclining to extend charity to a point at which it becomes sheer sapience? Is not the average American apt to extenuate wrongdoing? Isn't his judgment on a sinner?

"Oh, well. The poor devil—"

This is a harsh and reprehensible view, perhaps. But it came to my mind in discovering the recent experience of a friend of mine. He is a well to do chap, this friend. The two most trusted members of his household below stairs have been a Japanese butler and a French governess. When he and his wife went away on a long trip some months ago he left his two children and his home in the care of this pair.

"I know that I can rely on them," he said.

There is no need to go too deeply into the story. Suffice it to say that they were not to be relied on. His monetary loss was considerable to a rich man, but he may not discover for years the full extent of the injury done his children by the things they saw and heard and guessed at their impressionable age. The French governess and the Japanese butler were no longer possible in his household, but because he pitied the girl he found them places in the establishment of a friend.

"I have discharged them," the friend reported later. They were thoroughly objectionable."

Now the girl is tramping the streets, selling little articles at house doors. No one knows what has become of the Jap. Yet his friends think my rich acquaintance was unduly harsh. They criticize him by indirection. They recall that the two servants had been trusted for years. They seem to feel that the employer should have pensioned them, or made them a present, or in some way lightened the burden of life. Their judgment is that of the average American quoted above:

"Oh, well. The poor devil—"

I think they were a completely worthless pair who broke down morally the moment they felt they were not watched. It seems to me they deserve punishment rather than pity. But I'll confess my view is not a popular one. My friends seem to feel that absolute may be paid for by a few tears. Puritanic rigors, they say, are out of fashion.

DO YOU KNOW THAT?

There has been engraved on an area of glass only 111,000 of a square inch the complete Lord's Prayer. This was accomplished by an English clergyman, who later placed the whole prayer on 1,110,000 square inch. On the first scale one and a half complete Bibles could be placed on a square inch of area, while fifteen complete Bibles could be engraved on a square inch of glass if the smaller scale were used.

From every ton of ground sugar cane may be obtained five gallons of molasses, which can be made into two gallons of alcohol.

According to popular usage in England, "winter" means the months of November, December and January. Instead of December, January and February, as in this country. The other seasons are similarly one month earlier than ours.

INTERMEDIATE P. T. A. MEETING
The Intermediate Parent-Teacher association held a business session Wednesday at the school, when reports of committees and officers were received, the report of the treasurer showing a balance of $63.53.

The report of the membership chairman showed that Miss Sinclair's room had attained a 100 per cent enrollment, and a motion was made to reward any room which made that record with a silk flag, to be its permanent possession, independent of the flag that is now passed from month to month to the room making the largest gain in P. T. A. enrollment. After considerable debate the motion carried and the chairman was instructed to purchase the flag for Miss Sinclair's room.

The announcement made by Mrs. Hising, vice-president, that the Intermediate teachers and students who produced the variety show had offered to repeat it next Friday and donate half the proceeds to the P. T. A., the other 50 per cent to go to the treasury of the Athletic club, was received with enthusiasm and applause, tickets being placed on sale for a Friday night performance in the auditorium of the school.

On behalf of the association Mrs. Kulp, its president, who conducted the meeting, agreed to decorate in the school colors, red and white, the auditorium of Glendale high the evening of February 4 for the commencement exercises of the classes graduating from the grammar schools, as requested by Miss Noble, principal of Intermediate.

Superintendent White made a strong plea for support by the members of the association of the music memory contest, which has been inaugurated by the Glendale Music club, declaring it would be of inestimable benefit if the music selected for the contest could be indelibly impressed upon the memories of the children in the schools and thus supersede some of the jazz stuff with which they have been surfeited. He explained the plan under which the numbers selected for each week of the contest will be played daily in the school on Victrolas or rendered by the school orchestra and asked members to study the list and loan records for use in the contest.

Several members after the meeting donated a dollar to buy a record for the school's permanent possession, and Mrs. Kulp indicated if the Friday night variety show brings the association a goodly amount in cash it will donate a portion to be expended for the records which the school greatly needs. Following the session a luncheon was enjoyed in the domestic science room, where refreshments were served.

ENTERTAINED FRIENDS FROM EAST
A very pleasant day was enjoyed on Wednesday when Mrs. H. M. Way and Mrs. R. F. Kitterman entertained a number of eastern friends at the home of Mrs. Way, 301 North Brand boulevard. The guests were all formerly from Stanton, Neb., and are all now living at Long Beach. They have acquired the name of "Long Beach Stantonites" for there are so many of them. Decorations throughout the house were carried out in violets, sweet peas and ferns.

The dainty place cards were hand painted butterflies in shades of violet and pink, painted by Mrs. Glenn Chesney, daughter of Mrs. Way, and tiny pink nut baskets were used as favors. At noon a delicious four-course dinner was served, covers being laid for 22 guests, who included Mesdames Frank Barnes, W. F. Bordner, C. H. Chase, C. G. Crockett, Ed. Daniels, J. K. Kopitz, I. N. Vining, Fanny Thomas, C. Tremp, Will Tremp, L. J. Horton, George Scott, Amanda Person, Ray Person, C. Plont, Boss Odorone, Ella Grover, John, the Misses Edna McLeod, Ethel Vining and Ethel Chase, all of Long Beach, and the hostesses, Mrs. R. F. Kitterman and daughter, Miss La Vera Kitterman and Mrs. H. M. Way and daughter, Mrs. Glenn Chesney.

The afternoon was spent in talking over old times, as they had all known each other nearly all their lives.

TROUBLE TROUBLES MOST EVERY ONE

By JOHN BARTON

(Copyright, 1921, by Associated Newspapers)

Ruotions? Not with Tommy Peele's dad. He might have a temper 'most as big as himself, ramping round inside of him but he wouldn't let it burst out. Not even when he caught the man who accused him of hiding the red dog trying to shoot Tommy's own old watch.

"Put down that gun!" said he. "No, don't turn it on me. You may have nerve enough to poach some other fellow's game, or to shoot his dog, but you haven't nerve enough to stand up to the man himself, even with a gun in your hands."

Wasn't the hunter frustrated? He was afraid to obey, but he was also afraid to disobey. He thought Mr. Peele would surely pitch right in and give him an awful licking.

But he guessed wrong. Mr. Peele just went on explaining to him as if he were 'most too stupid to understand if the talk wasn't very, very plain. "You aren't trustable. That's why you hid your car round the turn of the road and came sneaking back here. I told you I'd let you know if your dog was found. But you knew I couldn't because you were scared to trust me with your right name. That was before you tried to kill this one of mine. Now if you want to look for him you'll have to send for an officer. If you ever dare set foot on my land again—well, I'll do the sending. See?"

Off they marched, with Tommy and Louie Thomson tagging after them. But Watch waited. For who should let out a disappointed yowl from the far side of the Pond but Maltie Kitten. "There!" he mewled. "They're gone! I knew that's what would happen. But that stubborn beast simply wouldn't come to do its own choosing."

"What beast? Where from?" barked Watch, beginning to guess. "The red dog," Maltie complained. "It's just over in that bunch of evergreens. But it won't stir until Louie calls it. 'Did you ever hear of such a thing?' 'You mean it heard its master?'

FOUR MEN MAKE ATTACK ON SMITH

Four men called at the back door of A. G. Smith's home, 332 Mira Loma avenue, on Tuesday night, and when Mr. Smith went out to see what they wanted, the quartet attacked him and, before he could free himself, administered a severe beating. It was reported to the police, and Capt. McGuire, Motorcycle Officers, Collins and Trautwein, and Patrolman Anthony responded and searched the neighborhood, but could not locate the men.

"Of course it did," Maltie's tail stuck straight up with indignation. "It just wouldn't come. So it's lost its chance to choose between him and Louie. You know the stars didn't promise it could for certain sure."

"Well, if that isn't the cat of it!" Watch smiled. "Whist, Maltie, my son. Sleek down, sleek down, till I tell you something. The red dog did choose! If it had answered that man it would be going away with him now. It would have owned it belonged to him."

"But Louie's gone too!" wailed the cat.

"Has he?" demanded the old fellow, his eyes sparkling.

LOAFERS MUST BE WORKED ON STREET

The city of Burbank has an ordinance which provides that "bums" may be put to work upon the streets and it is lately taking advantage of this measure. The police force has rounded up a score or so of hoboes who, when brought before Judge Avery on the charge of vagrancy, are usually given a fine of $10 or ten days on the rock pile. As few of them have any money and fewer still have as much as $10, they generally land in the street where they make more or less, generally less, efficient workmen. The city provides their feed, their officer in charge taking them to a restaurant where they are given their three meals.

Four negroes who were found guilty of stealing turkeys, were given an extra sentence, being given 30 days in the chain gang.

Mrs. H. C. Bond and Mrs. Maude Luttrell attended the Yeoman banquet and degree of Radamanthus in Los Angeles.

SCHOOL OFFICIAL AGAINST CANDY

Says Cheap Variety Is Very Harmful to All Students

County Superintendent of Schools Mark Keppel is reported as deploring the habit of school children buying such quantities of candy and knickknacks as most of them are doing. In speaking of this subject, Principal Moore of the local high school says he is in entire sympathy with Mr. Keppel and that he considers the habit a most vicious one. "I believe that fruit and ice cream are healthy and that no harm will result from children eating them, but I am absolutely opposed to children devouring so much candy and especially the cheap grade, and I should like to see the habit stopped."

Principal Collins of the grammar school said: "You cannot quote me too strongly on that subject. The habit of eating candy between meals is very injurious to the health of the children and hampers their school work both directly and through their health, indirectly. If the children must eat between meals they should eat fruit. I wish the parents would not give their children money to spend for candy and cheap cookies and this food-trash that is on sale around almost every school building in the country, with Burbank no exception. It is a costly habit in the matter of cash, and the money, although it be but a few cents a day, could be much better spent, especially in this time in families which are not over-burdened with cash under the most favorable circumstances, but the children from these homes like candy as well as those from wealthy homes, and they feel it keenly if they cannot do as others do, and the parents strain to permit them to have candy money, and all the time it is a very evil habit. Something should be done to stop it."

CHRISTIAN CHURCH HAS CONFERENCE

A fine prayer conference was conducted at the Christian church at an all-day meeting Tuesday, and was held in anticipation of the evangelical services which the Christian church will begin shortly. The meeting was in charge of Rev. H. C. Waddell of Los Angeles, director of the Evangelical Christian Union, who was assisted by Rev. W. P. Richardson, pastor of the First Christian church of Hollywood, and Rev. F. W. Farr, pastor of Calvary Baptist church of Los Angeles. They were assisted by the local pastors, Rev. Stevenson of the Presbyterian church and Rev. Allen of the Methodist church, while Rev. Parker was, of course, prominent in the services held in his own church.

BAND IN SCHOOL IS NOW PLANNED

One day not long ago a business man went to F. S. Moore, principal of their high school, and asked why there is no band in the school, and implied that the fault lay in the music department of the school, but Prof. Moore soon disabused his mind of that idea, for he said that everything was being done toward the organization of a band that could be done, but that a few more instruments were needed and it required money to get them, whereupon this band enthusiast stated that he would get the money, so if he comes through with his part of their program, there will soon be a school band. It is not recorded, just now, the name of this man.

BOYS GET WHEEL ALSO MUCH GRIEF

Harry Honniston and Chester Wesson Kirkman, of Los Angeles, came out to Burbank and got into trouble. The boys had two bicycles and they figured that Burbank would be a good place to get another so each one might ride a wheel. They came to Bur-

ENTERTAINMENT BY CHAMBER SOON

Fine Programs Have Been Provided for People of Burbank

R. W. Colburn, secretary of the chamber of commerce, has concluded arrangements whereby he will have the use of the auditorium of the grammar school on the nights of the 10th and 24th of February and March.

On February 10 there will be a concert under the direction of Zephyr Algots Sparrow. The proceeds of this will be divided equally between the chamber of commerce and the Women's club.

February 24 will be a boy scout entertainment with moving pictures. This will be under the direction of Principal Collins of the grammar school. The proceeds of this entertainment will go, half and half, to the boy scouts and the chamber.

The entertainment for the evening of March 10 has not been definitely decided upon, but Mr. Colburn thinks it will be a concert and that the American Legion will share in the proceeds.

The last number, which will be March 24, will be an Alabama minstrel entertainment. The cash returns from this will be shared equally with the Choral club. In all these numbers nothing but local talent will be engaged, which should be another strong inducement for every one who possibly can to attend. The programs will be fine and while the grammar school auditorium is reasonably large, it should be fitted to standing room.

NEW ASSOCIATION BEING FORMED

BURBANK.—Jan. 26.—There is in process of formation in Burbank, "The Burbank Civic Betterment association." The aims and objects of which are as follows:

To seek to know the truth as to all pertinent or material facts concerning any candidate for, or any holder of any office or position in the city of Burbank, whenever there is reason to believe such knowledge is necessary or important to properly or adequately promote the best interests of the moral, material, or financial welfare of the citizens of Burbank, and to accurately advise the citizens of Burbank as to such facts, whenever the circumstances demand or it shall be deemed wise or prudent that any advice as to such facts be given.

To do all things reasonably within its power to cause all municipal offices and positions of the city of Burbank to be filled at all time by persons who shall possess clean, strong, sturdy moral characters, whose honor is above reproach, and whose ability, skill and experience will best serve the interests of all the citizens of Burbank.

To announce from time to time and on such occasions as it may deem best, the names of those candidates for office whom, in its opinion, the citizens of Burbank should endeavor to elect to office. Burbank is growing fast, it is well before it gets too big, to have an association that the citizens can look to for unprejudiced information and this association, is made up of old-timers, newcomers, east-siders, west-siders, ranchers, town-people, church-people and citizens unattached, young and old, in fact such an association has a large number of citizens have had in mind for a long time.

but the police force of Burbank got them. The wheel they appropriated belonged to Harry Walker, son of W. L. Walker of 327 Angeleno avenue. The boys, all in their early teens, were caught by Deputy Marshal Wagon at the Glendale pumping plant and turned over to Mr. Walker, who refused to prosecute the youngsters.

REALTY BOARD TO TAKE BIG PART

Group of Realtors Will Boost for Burbank All the Time

The Burbank Realty Board expects to not devote itself entirely to realty matters but will in the future take an active interest in civic matters. To this end a committee was appointed to confer with the city board of trustees and learn of the plans and secure information relative to the bonds for the proposed sewer system, and it is the desire of the Realty Board to co-operate with the city as far as possible in all municipal affairs.

The members of this committee are Joseph Radcliff, W. H. Ramsey, and C. B. Fischer. This action was taken at the last meeting of the Board at its noonday luncheon. The next meeting will be held Monday evening with luncheon at 6:30 o'clock. This is done that more time may be given to matters of business which will be considered after the luncheon.

One of the important matters which will be acted upon at the forthcoming meeting will be the adoption of a constitution and by-laws. It is planned, also, by the Burbank Board to affiliate with the state and national realty boards and the details of this will be completed soon.

Mr. Edwards of the local firm of Edwards & Wiley became a member of the board at its last meeting. The organization is growing and what is more it is developing interest and enthusiasm in its own and city affairs and thus promises to be an institution of benefit to the community.

PROMOTION DAY BURBANK SCHOOL

Promotion day in the schools will be February 3, and the children are looking forward to the preceding examinations with fear and trembling, at least most of them are, although a few probably do not look upon them as anything but a time when they may with pride, demonstrate their knowledge. This is the time, too, when Principal Collins of the grammar school will have to provide a place for an extra class.

After looking the building over, upstairs and down, in the side-rooms and galleries, the nooks and corners and gazed at the roof contemplatively, he has decided to use the rear of the auditorium for the fourth grade. He says that there are four large radiators not far distant and with these and the use of blackboards which will be engaged to partially enclose a small room, the space in the rear of the auditorium may be made comfortable for the children. An extra teacher will be needed and the school authorities are now looking for one.

W. G. Simon of Angeleno avenue has received word of the expected arrival of his mother and his sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Cross. They are coming from Ohio and expect to visit here a few weeks.

A New Raspberry

Mary Lewis, The New Ever-bearing Red Raspberry, is a cross between the Superlative and the "St. Regis Red Raspberry." It is stronger than either of its parents, and is a greater producer, is an upright grower and needs no supports. The berries are very large, firm and pointed, of a velvet crimson, has few seeds and a good shipper, an excellent berry to put up for winter, cannot be beat. Good plants for 25c each, 25 for $5.00 or 100 for $15.00, prepaid.

FERGUSON TELLS CHAMBER OF PLAN

Night Arithmetic Class Will Be Dropped He Says

A. L. Ferguson of the Glendale high school addressed the directors of the chamber of commerce Tuesday and told of the work being done at the night school. He invited the members of the board to enroll in the gymnasium class at night for the business men and suggested that several volleyball teams be formed and a league developed.

Mr. Ferguson says the faculty of the night schools is thinking of dropping the night class in arithmetic, as attendance is falling off. To take the place of this class, a class in investments will be substituted and a series of lectures on financial transactions be given.

The object of this course will be to give instruction in the various investment propositions, the difference between wild cat and sound investments and the various phases of the stock and bond business. Lectures may be arranged by representatives of reputable bond houses on handling investments and the various forms of investment.

The directors of the chamber agreed with Mr. Ferguson that such a class would be a great help not only to the young people who attend the night school but to the business men of the city as well. Completed plans for this class will be announced later.

THE DESTROYERS

Do you know the Demon-of-Clearing-Things Out?
Do you know somebody who goes all about just looking for things like suspenders and spats And muffers and neckties and trousers and hats To be made in a bundle and given away To the Charity Bureaus—yes, this very day!
Do you know somebody who goes all about Possessed by the Demon-of-Clearing-Things Out?

Have you got some precious old things, such as shoes And pamphlets and papers and current reviews. That were current a long time ago (but you might Want to look at some one of those old books some night).

Have you got some drawers or some boxes or shelves With a lot of old things in, kept all by themselves, That you might want sometime—and do you raise a shout To drive off the Demon-of-Clearing-Things-Out?

Have you got a closet or niche or a nook, The limbo of things of the past, where you look For what you can't find anywhere in the house? That mildewed moth-eaten, retreat of the mouse. Have you got a lot of old things in a trunk, Old bills, memoranda, receipts and such junk, And do you find somebody prowling about Possessed by the Demon-of-Clearing-Things-Out?

Beware, if you find someone prowling about Possessed by the Demon-of-Clearing-Things-Out, For sometime you'll look through the whole blessed house And find not a place for a moth or a mouse. You won't have a hat more than seven years old, And all of your heirlooms of junk will be sold. For the rubbish it is—it will all go the route That is dear to the Demons-of-Clearing-Things-Out.

OBSERVATIONS

By the Oldest Inhabitant

Many Daily Press readers, I am sure, came from little country towns or cities back east, where the tree-bordered streets, the lanes of verdure. Twelve years ago Pacific avenue looking south from Seventh street as it then was, gave one a vision of such a street with its dusty surface and its occasional big pepper trees. There were no sidewalks, no parkways, no curbs. It was just a wide, beautiful street on which an automobile was never seen, and only an occasional vehicle of any kind. Now it is an up-to-date city street, paved in the center and with curbs, parkways and walks. Also there are many cozy homes now where then there were only vacant lots.

Do you know that not so many years ago we had a Christopher street intersecting Columbus avenue and a Penn street also? Christopher is now West Garfield avenue and Penn West Maple.

You know experts tell us that the mighty floods of modern times that widen our rivers until they stretch for miles from shore to shore are caused by the removal of the great forests that once covered most of the country and stored the waters during the heavy winter rains, then let it out gradually through its porous soil during spring and summer. That sounds pretty well in theory and may be true, but it does not square with the fact that the two greatest floods the historic Wabash river of Indiana and Illinois ever knew occurred before the forests had been hardly touched. The first and greatest was in 1817 and the other in 1844. I wasn't there at either date, but I heard the history of both floods narrated by one who witnessed them. She was a girl in her teens in 1817 and was with a party of settlers who floated down the river on a flatboat from somewhere in north central Indiana. The boat landed far out in the uplands, where now are thriving farms and a substantial school house. No flood of modern times has reached within two miles of this landing. The Wabash, normally about a fourth of a mile wide in the springtime, then stretched away for ten or fifteen miles. The flood of 1844, said my informant, was not so great as that of 1817, but still it far exceeded any that has been experienced since the hills and valleys, as well as the flat lands, have been denuded of trees.

The one-way fare from Lomita avenue to Los Angeles is now 21 cents, exactly what the round trip rate was before the raise. It may be all right for you to dissemble in the love you bear us, Mr. P. E. management, but why kick us down stairs into the back alley? You'd never think he could have been so deceived, the grave and sober Thomas W. Watson, erstwhile city manager but now "real estate," once touted a horn in the Tropico brass band. That was some 30 years ago, however, so it ought not to be remembered against him.

Do you know that during the Mexican war of 1845 to '48, the American forces lost only two battles, one the initial conflict on the Mexican side of the Rio Grande not far from its mouth, when Col. Thornton and his cavalry force of 64 men was defeated and captured by an overwhelming Mexican detachment, the other a clash between a band of sailors and marines from warships anchored at San Pedro, who were met at what is now Dominguez Junction on the P. E. line, by a force of Mexican soldiers from Los Angeles, then a small pueblo. The little band of Americans, whom history declares were most of them pretty well under the influence of liquor, which was not uncommon in those days, marched across the then open country from the harbor, bent on capturing Los Angeles. A force of Mexicans 200 in number, led by a brave and competent young lieutenant, marched out from the town's entrenchments to give battle in the open country. As the American forces rounded the hill at Dominguez they came upon the Mexicans, deployed in the open plain with a 6-pounder field piece well out to the front. The intoxicated sailors charged with a cheer but the little field piece, loaded with slugs, was fired in their very faces, killing several and wounding many more. They fell back at once, then after a short time charged again. The cannon meantime had been reloaded and the result was the same as before. Again and again there was advance and shameful retreat, each time giving the Mexicans time to reload their cannon, until at last the American force made a disorderly retreat to their ships. Such was the battle of Dominguez. Not long after this the pueblo of Los Angeles was surrendered to Gen. Fremont and history says the formal negotiations were conducted under a big live oak tree still standing in Verdugo Woodlands.

Probably the first house moved in Glendale was the little Presbyterian church building which, by the way, is still standing, after nearly 40 years of service. Just behind the big building at the corner of Cedar and Broadway. Nowadays it is likely a building of this size would be put on dollies and moved with auto trucks. But 36 years ago autos were unknown and the little church building moved slowly by the recently christened Glendale avenue, pulled by horses circling around a windlass. While this little temple was amply large for the accommodation of all the worshippers of those days, it will appear as a toy beside the magnificent new building soon to be started at the corner of Louise and Harvard streets. Three buildings in 36 years, ranging in cost from less than $200 to more than $150,000, is some record for these good people.

Anent our proposed new post-office building, it would be fine if torney of Los Angeles, who lives at 1412 South Brand boulevard, said, in speaking of the park, "At the recent election it was asserted that the cemetery was a dead issue, and on that assertion the candidate who favored the extension of the cemetery was re-elected. The South Glendale people have awakened to the fact that their gravest fears are about to be fully realized. The cemetery association claims that it is laying its ground out in the nature of a park, but the character of the park is indicated by the barbed wire fence, which completely surrounds its property, and comes within four inches of the Glendale avenue sidewalk. The property is being graded and trees are being planted.

"It is understood that litigation is now pending involving the validity of the enabling act to prohibit interments. It is successful in this suit, the cemetery association will doubtless utilize the ground that it is now improving, for cemetery purposes. The city should take this matter up and fight it as vigorously as possible. The encroachment of this kind of a park on Glendale avenue is an outrage."

Attorney Campbell voices the sentiment of the people of the south end of the city in relation to the extension of the Forest Lawn cemetery. The people are "sizzling" over the matter and they do not intend to sit with folded hands and watch the burial ground extended into Glendale.

When questioned this morning as to what the city is doing and will do in this matter, City Manager Reeves said:

"The City of Glendale will not for a moment consider the extension of the Forest Lawn cemetery within its borders. This should be understood now and for all time to come by everybody. We have the Shoals canyon proposition on the run now, so there is no danger of that.

"The Forest Lawn cemetery association has been denied the permit to make interments in Glendale and the city may be relied upon to support this denial. So far as keeping the company from beautifying its property along Glendale avenue with trees and shrubbery is concerned, and conveying it into a park, the city can do nothing. But if the association attempts to make interments on this side of the line, the city will step in and the fur will fly.

"No man can be prohibited from improving his property providing it is improved in accordance with city laws. Every property owner, whether he be an individual or an association, has the right to do as he pleases with his property, but when it comes to making interments within the city the municipal powers may be invoked.

"The people of the southern end of the city may rest assured that the Forest Lawn cemetery association or any other organization, except where already established, will never succeed in using Glendale property for burial purposes, without a big fight."

Glendale could be afforded the opportunity that came to Long Beach in 1904. Pine avenue was then the leading street in the growing peach city and American avenue, like our own Brand boulevard, was the route of the P. E. tracks, but was a street with very few houses bordering it. So to "pull" business house locations, a group of capitalists owning lots along American avenue built up a 3-story building 110 feet deep by 25 feet wide, and offered the government the entire first story for a postoffice location. This was at Second and American, and the rental charged was $1 a year. The desired result was achieved, for by 1910, when the postoffice was removed to Fifth and Pine, a group of business houses had been built on American behind the postoffice. The postoffice department certainly would not refuse to lease a location in Glendale at such a rental if some citizen or a group of citizens should choose to try an experiment similar to that which was so successful in Long Beach.

Love may be the greatest thing in the world, but the support of lessor things to succeed, such trifles, for instance, as money.

BURIED ALIVE IS SHERIFF'S BELIEF

Ventura County Posse Searches for Unnamed Deserter

VENTURA, Cal., Jan. 26.—Sheriff William McGlinchy and a posse are today searching for an unnamed naval deserter in connection with the finding of the body of a man who had apparently been buried alive in a trench and covered over an isolated area nine miles north of here. The dead man was believed to have been the victim of a moonshiner's feud.

A hundred feet from the lonely grave were parts of what had once been a large still. A quantity of mash was also found secreted nearby. The dead man had been stunned with a blow upon the head, a sack tied over him and had been buried in a trench and covered over with sandy loam. Sheriff McGlinchy does not believe the murdered man was dead at the time he was buried. Investigation did not show the blow on the head to have been sufficient in itself to cause death, officials said.

CEMETERY STIRS UP SOUTH SIDE

It has been learned from official sources that it will take about one week to prepare plans and specifications for the widening of this roadway. After this is done, about two months will be required for the legal steps to be taken that will order the work to be done. It may, therefore, be safely stated that within three months from this time the contractor who will be awarded the work of improving this piece of roadway will be on the job. From that time work will be rushed. The residents of the southern end of the city are elated over the fact that the actual work on this roadway is in sight and that the city is doing everything in its power to have this stretch widened.

STEADY GROWTH IN BUSINESS

"Things have been steadily picking up since the Christmas holidays," say the proprietors of the Southern Glendale garage, 1416 South San Fernando road. "It is a question of one job after the other. Business is so good that we are often compelled to work almost every night. Good work and honest prices are sure to tell in the end."

Attorney Campbell voices the sentiment of the people of the south end of the city in relation to the extension of the Forest Lawn cemetery. The people are "sizzling" over the matter and they do not intend to sit with folded hands and watch the burial ground extended into Glendale.

When questioned this morning as to what the city is doing and will do in this matter, City Manager Reeves said:

ALL DEEDS NOW IN HANDS OF CITY

Opening of Los Feliz Road Is Progressing Rapidly

The preliminary work looking toward the opening of Los Feliz road between the San Fernando road and Brand boulevard, was done Tuesday and Wednesday, when the old Bombard homestead, which has been located at the sharp curve in this road for the past 15 or 20 years, was removed. The outbuildings were also removed, clearing the way for the improvement.

It has been ascertained from the city engineer's office that all of the required deeds for property along this stretch are now in the hands of city officials. The securing of these deeds has taken over several months' time, but at the same time the method of procedure adopted has done away with the necessity of condemning the strip of property along this stretch, which in itself would have taken something like a year. In choosing the shorter route the city has shown that it is anxious to bring about the improvement of this road at the very earliest possible moment. If for no other reason, the city officials realize that for the safety of motorists and pedestrians it is absolutely necessary that this improvement be made as soon as possible. The traffic over this stretch of road is increasing each month and the widening of the road cannot be effected too soon.

It has been learned from official sources that it will take about one week to prepare plans and specifications for the widening of this roadway. After this is done, about two months will be required for the legal steps to be taken that will order the work to be done. It may, therefore, be safely stated that within three months from this time the contractor who will be awarded the work of improving this piece of roadway will be on the job.
